Encourages Comparison

The unequaled performance of MOTOPOWER Gasoline, coupled with its gratifying reception among hundreds of motorists already has apparently encouraged others to seek comparison.

There is no Substitute for MOTOPOWER --------It Lubricates the Motor with a constant Vapor ----It Eliminates Formation of Carbon ——It Provides More Miles for less Dollars

---It Maintains the Efficiency of any Motor. MOTOPOWER costs more, but does not sell for more. It's superior qualities, coupled with a smoother and longer lasting Motor are outstanding advantages to be gained through its constant use.

"Power Companies' Bid Far More Advantageous"

Says Government Advisory Board, in its report to Joint Congressional Committee. Described as better from standpoint fertilizer production, financial return to Government and future investment of people's money. Report published below, together with excerpt from public record, showing why and by whom, board was appointed:

Sixty-Ninth Congress

Your committee invited the Hon, Dwight F. Davis, Secretary of War; the Hon. Hubert Work, Secretary of the Interior; the Hon. Wilbers of the Federal Power Commission—and the Hon. Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, to confer with it and requested their sid in securing the services of technical experts and advisors to assist the committee in its work. They suggested the organization of an advisors loard and recommended the following persons, who have assisted the committee in its investigations and negotiations:

MONETARY RETURN TO THE UNITED STATES:

(Note: The Power Companies' offer in this respect was amended after this report was compiled. The revised figures follow): "I. Brig. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, Assistant Chief of Engineers, United States Army, "2. Mr. Faul S. Clapp, representative Depart-

"3. Dr. S. C. Lind, Associate Director Fixed Nitrogen Research Laboratory, Department of Agriculture, (Dr. F. G. Cottrell, director of the Department of Agriculture, was the representative for the Department of Mg leuiture until he left for Europe on April 16.) "4. Mr. C. A. Discell, Bureau of Reclamation, Department of the Interior. "In addition to the foregoing, the following gentlemen assisted materially in the studies: "Lieut, Col. George R. Smidhy, Corps of Engineers; Maj. Max C. Tylor, Corps of En-gineers; Maj. Philip B. Fleming, Corps of Engineers; Mr. F. A. Ernst, Department of Agri-culture; Maj. James H. Burns, Ordnance De-partment, United States Army; Maj. Glen C. Edgerton, Chief Engineer, Federal Power Com-mission; Dr. P. E. Howard, Ordnance Depart-ment, United States Army."

Report of Government Advisory Board The results of an anlysis by the Government Advisory Committee were summarized in the April 23, 1926. Hon. Charles S. Deneen, · Chairman Joint Congressional Committee on Leasing Muscle Shoals, United States Sen-ate, Washington, D. C. Dear Senator Dencen: In accordance with your verbal request, your advisory committee has given consideration to two revised bids, one from the Air Nitrates Corporation and American Cyanamide Company, and the other from the associated power companies. We have endeavored to make a comparative analysis of these two bids from the following

(a) National defense. (b) Fertilizer benefits to agriculture.
 (c) Distribution of power not required for national defense or in fertilizer manufacture. (d) Monetary return to the United States.(e) Additional expenditures required by the United States or other considerations to be given by the United States. (f) Guaranty of performance.(g) Situation at end of lease period.

The outstanding points under each head may be summarized as follows: (a) NATIONAL DEFENSE-Both bidders provide in a satisfactory manner for mainte-nance of properties in a state of readiness for national defense. The Air Nitrates Corpora-tion until Congress shall decide that this is no longer necessary. The Associated Power Companies until the Secretary of War shall so decide.

(b) FERTILIZER AND BENEFITS TO AGRICULTURE—It appears from this study, so far as the production of fertilizer is concerned that, because of the seemingly better assurance of reaching the 40,000 tons of nitrogen production and through a process of present and apparently future greater possibilities for lessening costs, and also because of the larger invested capital which will in itself be an incentive to keep up production, the proposal of the Associated Power Companies is more advantageous. It is believed, however, that the feature of a discontinuance of production because of a storage of fertilizer containing 5,000 cause of a storage of fertilizer containing 5,000 tons of nitrogen would be improved by an amendment requiring one year's production in

(c) DISTRIBUTION OF POWER NOT REQUIRED FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE OR IN FERTILIZER MANUFACTURE—The bid of the Air Nitrates Corporation provides that surplus power will be available to the lessee, the American Cyanamide Company, and/or its subsidiaries for use in their own local industries at Muscle Shoals, for other local industries, and for distribution in Alabama and other States. The Power Company bid provides for distribution of surplus power through a system of transmission lines already constructed and in operation covering a large territory in Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Georgie, South Carolina, and North Carolina. These lines are tied in with auxiliary plants operated by interconnected companies. This gives opportunity

These estimates indicate that financially, i. e., looked at from the standpoint of the United States and its taxpayers, the Power Company's (e) ADDITIONAL CAPITAL INVESTMENT REQUIRED OF THE UNITED STATES BY BIDDERS—Air nitrates bid requires additional capital investment by the Government of $39,360,000, while the Power Company requires no additional appropriation by the Government.

The air nitrates bid sets up as a prerequisite the granting to a subsidiary of the bidder by the Federal Power Commission, of preliminary permits for the Cove Creek, Cenator, Melton Hill and Clinton Dams, all on Clinch River, there issuance by the commission of licenses there issuance by the commission of licenses there-for if desired by the company. The Power companies' bid requires no permits or li-The Power Companies' bid, in that it does not further complicate the situation by requiring further additional appropriations and further commitments, is the more advantageous (f) GUARANTEES OF PERFORMANCE (f) GUARANTEES OF PERFORMANCE—The American Cyanamide Company definitely guarantees the performance of the obligations of the Air Nitrate Corporation. The Associated Power Companies do not appear to provide a definite guarantee on the part of the distributing company for the performance of the fertilizer company, beyond the provision of capital, and the ownership of the common stook. In this particular the Cyanamide Company is bester.

(Note: Subsequent to this letter the Power Cempanies' offer was amended to provide for a forfeiture of both power and fertilizer con-tracts if the fertilizer company defaulted in its (g) CONDITIONS AT END OF LEASE PERIOD—Both bidders provide for recapture by the United States of additional generating units and/or other power facilities built by lessee at own expense, and both bidders abandon to the United States all buildings and equipment built on leased property by and at the expense of lessee for manufacture of fertilizers. Air Nitrates Corporation reserves right to re move within reasonable time all buildings and equipment built by it for other purposes. Both equipment built by it for other purpoblds are satisfactory in this respect. inasmuch as both bids are satisfactory from the standpoint of national defense, and the Associated Power Companies' bid is so much better from the standpoints of fertilizer performance, financial return to the United States, and freedom from complications incident to additional appropriations, in the opinion of your committee, the Power Companies' bid is your sommittee, the Pow far more advantageous. Respectfully submitted. EDGAR JADWIN, Assistant Chief of Engineers (War). PAUL S. CLAPP (Commerce). S. C. LIND (Agriculture). C. A. BRESELL (Interior).
